ABSTRACT

This report illustrates assemblages of miospores from Yukon Territory, Northwest Territories, and the Maritime Provinces of Canada. Thirteen assemblages from Carboniferous and Permian rocks are shown on 38 plates with 918 photomicrographs. Each plate is accompanied by provisional taxonomic identifications and brief statement of stratigraphic provenance of the fossils. Most of the fossils have not been previously figured.

Illustrations of Canadian Fossils

CARBONIFEROUS AND PERMIAN SPORES OF CANADA

INTRODUCTION

This report is the thirteenth in a series designed primarily to present illustrations of fossils from Canadian rocks. Like two of the preceding reports in the series (McGregor, 1965; McGregor and Owens, 1966) it illustrates miospores, which for the most part are below 200 microns in size. This report is intended to provide illustrations of spore assemblages from rocks of known age, which may be useful to students and professional palynologists for laboratory reference.

The spores shown on Plates I-IV have been illustrated by Playford (1964) and Hacquebard (1957). Most of the remaining fossils have not been figured previously. The assemblages on Plates V-VI, Windsor Group, and Plates VII-XI, Mattson Formation, are from single samples. The others are composite assemblages from two or more samples.

This report is not intended as a record of all species present in the assemblages, nor is it a substitute for thorough taxonomic determinations of the spores based on examination of numerous specimens and comparison with type material. The fossils have been identified by reference to descriptions and illustrations in published literature. No attempt has been made to bring the nomenclature up to date.

The fossils with few exceptions have been extracted by the writer, from rocks of widely separated regions of Canada: Yukon Territory, Northwest Territories and the Maritime Provinces (see Figs. 1 and 2). The assemblages are arranged in ascending stratigraphic order and the stratigraphic provenance of the rock enclosing each assemblage is given in the legends accompanying the plates. The geographic locations of the samples are listed on page 4. The spores were derived from surface and subsurface samples collected in nearly all instances by officers of the Geological Survey of Canada. Additional geological data may be obtained in the publications referred to in the plate descriptions.

Redeposited Lower Carboniferous and Devonian spores were present in the Lower Permian samples from localities 56956, 56961, and 57036 (Plates XXXVI in part to XXXVIII in part). The reworked spores were easily recognized and excluded.

In the descriptions of the plates the prefix "cf." implies that the spore is similar to the taxon named and possibly conspecific with it; "?" preceding the generic name indicates whole identification uncertain; "?" following the specific name indicates confident generic assignment, but uncertain specific assignment. Spores that could not be compared with forms in the literature are listed as "unidentified".

The slides have been deposited in the Geological Survey of Canada type collections in Ottawa. Numbers following figure descriptions on the plates are Geological Survey fossil plant type numbers. All figures are shown at magnification of X 500, except where otherwise stated.

Manuscript received: December 9, 1966.
